

McQuillen-Jackson Vows Repeated in Church Rites

Now making their home at 1819 W. 182nd street are the former Sally June Jackson and her bridegroom, Gordon C. McQuillen.

Rev. Clarence E. Miller, pastor of First Methodist Church, performed the simple ceremony in the presence of family members and intimate friends of the couple. Donald Jackson gave his sister in marriage.

Miss Peggy Jackson attended the bride as maid of honor, and Donald Marvin McQuillen was the bridegroom's best man.

The bride, a daughter of Mrs. June R. Jackson, of 1819 W. 182nd street, attended Gardena High School and was graduated from Ventura Junior College. Her husband, son of Mrs. Blanche McQuillen, 12321 Hobart avenue, received his diploma from Torrance-High School in June, '49 and is employed by a building contractor in Redondo Beach.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother immediately followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. McQuillen are planning a honeymoon trip for early next winter.

Potted plants, carnations and dahlias created a cool summertime effect for the afternoon party.

Homemaking To Be Aided By Program

Women at the University of Southern California will be taught about courtship and marriage by a minister, will learn about prenatal care and how to diagnose elementary illness of the family from a doctor, and be trained in investments and budgets as the result of a new educational program starting in September.

"Because three out of every four women who graduate from California universities marry, SC has sensed the need of a new program to develop better homemakers, parents and community leaders," said Dean Tracy E. Stevey of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences.

Supplementing courses already established for professional and cultural fields, the new program will include subjects of planning the home, law for everyday living, family health, food and nutrition, personal and family finances and education for marriage.

Rev. James A. Peterson, pastor of the Manhattan Beach Community Church, will give classes in social, religious, ethical and economic phases of marriage. Child-care and family health will be taught by Dr. J. N. DeLamater, associate dean of the School of Medicine. Site selection of the home and interior decoration are among subjects to be given by Prof. Waldo A. Kirkpatrick of the School of Architecture, and knowledge of insurance, savings and the family budget will be learned from Prof. Sherman W. Terry, College of Commerce.

Dr. William R. Bergen will teach diets and nutrition, and William H. Gibson of the School of Law will feature everyday law for the housewife.

Red Cross Ships Blood For Fighters

The Red Cross last week-end throughout the nation was loading whole blood aboard airplanes for transport to battlefronts of South Korea for transfusion use on wounded American GIs.

In Los Angeles 96 pints of whole blood were flown via Western Airlines to San Francisco Municipal Airport for shipment to Tokyo and thence to hospitals and Army Medical Corps units below the 38th parallel.

The shipment from Los Angeles will be added to that sent to San Francisco from Red Cross regional blood service centers in all parts of the country and will be part of 1400 pints to be airborne by a U. S. military transport.

Subsequent weekly shipments of whole blood will be made up from collections from West Coast Red Cross Blood Centers only, with the Los Angeles division expected to supply a minimum of 1000 pints of whole blood every month for the exclusive use of the military.

To meet the current military and community needs of whole blood, Los Angeles Red Cross must collect 25 per cent more pints every day—both at headquarters on the Western avenue, and on the daily visitations of the three mobile units to industrial plants, business concerns and nearby communities, local chapter leaders point out.

The Regional Red Cross Blood Service Center in Los Angeles is open Mondays through Thursdays from noon to 7 p.m., and on Fridays from 8 to 9 p.m. Appointments may be made by phoning Dunkirk 4-5261.
